

How 2-Year Programs Help Students Transfer

Your Advisor is Key

Students work closely with their advisors to successfully apply, gain admission, and transfer credits to their university. Additionally, American Honors students enjoy unique access to our National Transfer Network, the only one of its kind in the US. Graduates may apply to a combination of in- and out-of-network universities. Some American Honors network participants offer benefits that include but are not limited to, fee waivers, guaranteed course transfer, or contingent acceptance.

"American Honors provided a lot of transfer support...Without my Honors advisor, I wouldn't have considered applying to Cornell University. My advisor encouraged me to look into it and helped me with the application process. I learned about the great research opportunities for undergraduates in my intended major in human biology."

"My Honors advisor helped me through the transfer process, which can get really confusing, especially for an international student. My advisor helped me every step of the way...American Honors helped me get into a good school and get a full scholarship."

Students get complete support and one-on-one advising sessions to ensure a smooth transfer process. From enrollment through transfer, students get personal guidance on every part of the process: making a degree plan, selecting courses, selecting a school, and applying for financial aid and scholarships. Students are coached through a five-step process to help them transfer.

1. Select classes likely to transfer.

Work with your advisor to select classes, a major, and degree pathway that are both interesting and likely to transfer.

2. Perform well academically.

Demonstrate strong performance and growth both academically and outside the classroom. Get involved in a club, sport, or activity that is meaningful to you. Seek out leadership positions. Continue to earn high grades and work closely with your professors. Consider whom you might ask for a letter or recommendation in the fall of your second year.

3. Research schools and apply.

Students have access to the 2-year college's transfer network and benefits. Advisors will help students select schools to apply to both within and outside of the college's network. Additionally, American Honors students enjoy access to the benefits of the national transfer network.

4. Receive admissions decisions and credit evaluation results.

Receive an admissions decision from schools where you applied. Carefully review credit evaluations of the university admissions offices and academic departments.

5. Evaluate offer packages, select a university, and enroll.

Evaluate options, taking into account financial aid packages and degree audit reports. Search for outside scholarships through Phi Theta Kappa, FastWeb, CollegeFish, and local sites. Accept an offer of admission and arrange housing at your transfer school if necessary. Send final grades/transcripts to your university of choice.
